

Retribution (Shaitan Wars) (Volume 3)

The triumphant victory of humanity, turned into its biggest holocaust within the matter of a day. Never before had so many humans been killed in a single day, or a single year, or a single war ever. For months, humanity was numb with shock, fear and grief. Slowly that numbness gave way to something else. A deep anger and hatred at a level that transcended all boundaries to unite the human species as one. If there ever was anything that united the human species, the Great Kinetic Holocaust would be on top of that list. Humans realized that they were facing an existential threat. If a few more of these Kinetic Ships were launched against Earth, humanity would be sent back to the stone ages, if anyone survived at all. Then it would take no time for the Shaitans to come and wipe out the remaining humans off the face of Earth. This was no way to live under constant fear and threat of extinction. If this was to be the end of humanity, then there would be only one way humans would die fighting. It is never wise to let the war happen in your own home. It was far better to let the battle happen in your enemys home. But humans were constrained by their technology. Humans could not reach out and attack the Shaitan home world like they could reach ours. An unexpected gift from an unexpected source gives humans that ability. It finally enables humanity to strike Alpha Shaitan. When humans reach the dark but beautiful worlds of Alpha Shaitan, they show the Shaitans what the combined wrath of humanity can do to their worlds. The human campaigns on Alpha Shaitan were about revenge, but they were also about deterrence. It was about sending a message that if the Shaitans even thought of causing grief to humanity, the Shaitans would suffer a hell lot more than they can imagine. The human campaigns were about neutralizing the ability of the Shaitans to mount attack on Earth. Later historians would generally agree that the Alpha Shaitan campaign went a lot further than it was originally intended to. It probably was a lot more excessive than it should have been. The unimaginably terrible outcome of the Alpha Shaitan campaign is now generally accepted as the beginning of humanity's reputation as such a terrifying and ruthless species to its enemies and detractors. Whatever the peace loving, left wing historians might say in the future, to the men and women who fought the Alpha Shaitan campaign, they were fighting for a just cause. Tens of thousands of men and women sacrificed the best years of their lives to make sure that the Earth never suffered another Kinetic Holocaust at the hands of the Shaitans. Many of these Navy crew and Marines were themselves the children of the Holocaust. For them the campaign of Alpha Shaitan was a lot more personal. For them it was all about retribution.
